My son sleeps while our cat has returned after nearly 3 weeks missing. He will find out in the morning.

This is one of my favorite songs. Some years ago when I had a light stroke, I forgot the lyrics, as I recovered the lyrics came back to me slowly. I knew I was getting better when I could sing it in its entirety. "Upside down you turning me, your giving love instinctively....."

The only thing more beautiful than this song are many of the comments about it.....

I was only 12 or 13 and lived in Window Rock, Arizona (the capital of the Navajo Nation). There was a dance at the rec. center. After I was sure my parents were sleeping I crawled out the window and walked all the way across town to be part of the music scene! It was the first taste of dancing at a club and I was hooked. That night I stood on the sidelines, gazed at the lights spinning around from the disco ball and watched the dancers. I love music! To this day I feel free dancing the night away! God bless all those who make it happen. Music just puts you in a different place and changes your whole mindset and outlook on life. Thank God for that!

Maaaan, I love my wife, but she would kill me if she knew how me and my cell-mate used to get down to this song back when I was in prison.

When I left New York for Georgia, my hubby, then boyfriend said this was playing on the radio. Poor thing said he was so lonely that night.

Got my bell bottoms on, a bottle of Boone's farm in one hand, a Tareyton in the other. My chick is next to me, going down a dark, rural road in Mississippi. Our long hair is blown around by the warm summer breeze. She's wearing tight jeans and a halter top, no bra-ah, baby-

This song brings me to a dark place. My step father had recently lost his legs in a motorcycle race . Despite his immobilization he still managed to abuse me and my mother . Good tune tho
